The Names Of Allaah

Allaah has revealed to us 99 beautiful names in the Qur'aan. These names are a manifestation of His essence and His attributes. Each name reveals a different aspect of Allaah's nature, and they all point to His perfection and His uniqueness.

The names of Allaah are divided into two categories: the essential names and the descriptive names. The essential names are those that describe Allaah's essence, such as al-Awwal (the First) and al-Akhir (the Last). The descriptive names are those that describe Allaah's attributes, such as al-Rahman (the Most Merciful) and al-Raheem (the Most Kind).

The Attributes Of Allaah

In addition to His names, Allaah has also revealed to us His attributes. The attributes of Allaah are those qualities that belong to Him alone. They are not created, and they are not separate from His essence.

The attributes of Allaah are divided into two categories: the essential attributes and the additional attributes. The essential attributes are those that are necessary for Allaah's existence, such as His knowledge, His power, and His will. The additional attributes are those that are not necessary for Allaah's existence, such as His mercy, His forgiveness, and His love.
